Comment of the second of the s

SIGHT

The primary trusted perceptia information gateway. More ofter than we care to admit, we trust what we see in the world around us and accept it to be true

01 02

SMELL

A strong gateway to the memory. Plesant scents build rapport, while bad scents invoke immediate reactions. 05

04

TOUCH

Few things compare to the validation of holding or touching an object.
Touch often begins with and can be decieved by sight.

TASTE

Closely bound together with smell taste can invoke memories and be quite telling of a person's identity.

SOUND

Without the validation of sight, sound becomes a powerful trusted source of information and percetpion

